Essential Health with Kim Keceli

Tuesday, May 19th at 1 or 5:30 pm

What is Qi? Why is it Important for Your Overall Health?

Qi is a fundamental concept of traditional Chinese medicine dating back over 3,000 years. Qi is the Chinese word for energy. Qi flows through the body via the 14 meridian channels, which run up or throughout the body along specific pathways, delivering energy throughout the body. When this energy is flowing through a person in a constant pattern a person is said to be in balance. When someone has an illness, injury, stress, or other trauma this can cause blockage of the Qi. During this presentation, Mrs. Keceli will explain this topic in greater detail. She will also describe where the meridian points are located and where energy blockages are likely to occur. As a practitioner of Chinese Medicine she will discuss how to best realign your Qi.

The program will end with a short Qi Gong Series.

There will be time after the presentation for questions.

For more information about Kim Keceli and her practice visit her website at <http://www.essenceyou.com>.

These are free drop in programs.
Free refreshments will be served.
